Lightning Bolt Is Believed To Have Struck Airplane

Business Men From Kansas City Had Been Fishing

EXPLODES IN THE AIR

Craft Seen Falling to the Earth By Farmers Soon After

ARANSAS PASS, Tex., July 11.—(AP)—Five Kansas City men who flew to the Gulf of Mexico on a fishing trip, four of them prominent business and professional men and the fifth a transport pilot met death near here Thursday when their airplane exploded in the air and crashed to the ground.

The dead: Mural Boyle, 48, president of the Missouri Bar association and prominent civic leader in Kansas City.

Raymond Watson, 39, attorney, son of I. N. Watson, veteran member of the Kansas City bar.

R. J. Lelano, 47, for the last 20 years a builder of apartments and residents in Kansas City and formerly chairman of the republican city committee.

Eugene Lynn, expert accountant and prominent of the Kansas City Golf association.

Gene Gabbert, a transport pilot of several years' experience and for last year pilot for Dr. W. M. Cross, former city chemist of Kansas who loaned his plane for the fishing trip.

Explosion Heard

Witnesses of the crash said their attention was attracted by an explosion and, looking skyward, they saw both wings break from the six passenger monoplane. The fuselage hurtled down with the trapped victims and buried itself in the salt flats about five miles from here. It did not catch fire. The wings were found 500 feet from the fuselage.

Persons who saw the plane fall and inspected the wreckage expressed the opinion that the ship had been struck by a bolt of lightning.

The theory that lightning struck the plane was given credence by experienced pilots. They pointed out there had been scattered showers in the vicinity all day and that local squalls were noticeable over Corpus Christi Bay.

Frederick H. Dierks, Kansas City, lumberman, the sixth member of the party that arrived at Corpus Christi Sunday in quest of tarpon fishing, was the only survivor of the group. He decided at the last minute to let the plane leave without him while he remained at Port Aransas, across the bay from here, for more fishing.

The plane had been left at Corpus Christi until Thursday, when Gabbert went for it, landing at the Port Aransas field to take on his passengers. After leaving the field the ship flew about 10 miles before it crashed.

Dierks bade good bye to his companions at the field.

"They had had a successful fishing trip and were talking about reaching Kansas City Thursday night," he said. "The plane made a perfect takeoff. I stood watching it until it was fully 4000 feet up. The sky was clear. Ahead several miles I could see an exceedingly dark cloud. I watched the plane until it disappeared in this black cloud. A few minutes later I heard there had been an accident.

"Farmers who had gathered told me the story of the accident. Some of them had noticed the plane disappear into the black cloud. All of a sudden the plane came crashing out of the cloud. One wing was off, or partly so. Before the ship was half way to the ground the gasoline tanks separated from the remainder of the plane.

"I don't suppose anyone will know positively just what happened up there in that black cloud but it seemed to be the impression of nearly all that saw the accident that the plane had been struck by lightning. That an awful ending to what had been the most perfect fishing trip imaginable."

It was Texas' second air disaster to claim five lives. A passenger plane crashed near Spur in West Texas several months ago, killing all five aboard.

"Miss Broadway of 1930"

There's a broken heart for almost every pretty girl on Broadway, and here's the reason—the prettiest, according to certain judges, of them all. In a contest, which invited the competition of all New York's musical show pulchritude, Miss Violet Carson, as you see her here, smiled her way to the title of "Miss Broadway of 1930." The prize was a ticket to Europe, a round-trip one, of course, so Violet won't forget to come home.

Rotary Spirit Is Manifest Abroad

E. F. McFaddin Reports on Chicago Convention to Hope Club

What the Rotary spirit means to people speaking foreign tongues, was described by E. F. McFaddin, past president of Hope Rotary club, in an address before the local club at luncheon in Hotel Barlow today.

Mr. McFaddin's address was a detailed story of the activities of the Chicago International convention, which he and President George W. Ware attended. Mr. McFaddin told in particular of attending the British Empire dinner, in which a Rotarian from India stated that the influx of the Rotary spirit in that land had done more, he believed, in the cause of peace than all the political efforts of the British crown.

Rotary has also made foreign lands more appreciative of the facts about the United States, the speaker continued. A Belgian Rotarian reminded Mr. McFaddin that Arkansas has more Rotarians in proportion to her population than any state or nation, about one in 1,000.

Today's program was in charge of Vice-President C. C. Spragins, who spoke briefly. President Ware outlined program plans for the new administration, and introduced Robert Huguinin as the program chairman for the next three months. Also on the program committee are: Wynne Deity and J. F. Duffie, who will succeed Mr. Huguinin as chairman at three-month intervals.

Mr. Ware appointed a fellowship committee of the following: J. J. Kirby, Jr., chairman; C. S. Lowthorp and Talbot Field.

Guests at today's luncheon were, Earl Harrison, of Malvern, and Lyle M. Webb, of Hope.

Prepare To Test Miller Co. Well

Casing To Be Set and Hole Cemented Saturday

TEXARKANA, July 11.—(AP)—Reports received from the C. V. Linz well, located in the southwest quarter of section 24, township 15, range 25, about 16 miles east of here, give strong hopes for oil in paying quantities. Drilling has stopped and work of putting down concrete and other preparations for bringing in the well, are under way. The depth to which the drilling has gone is variously reported at 2,300 to 3,000 feet.

This is the ninth well that Mr. Linz has put down in the vicinity in the last four or five years.

Visitors To Make Better Seed Study

Good Seed Material Aid to the Success of a Good Crop

Good seed aids verily materially in the success of a crop. Poor seed practically insures the failure of the crop. It is quite true that seed is only one of the many considerations which must be taken into account in the production of a crop of any kind. There is the matter of fertilizer, of proper soil and proper cultivation, of disease and insect control. However, unless good seed has been used the grower may give attention in vain to all these other factors. The problem of seed cannot be solved simply by going to the seed merchant and writing a check for so many pounds of this or that. It requires careful study of the conditions under which the crop is to be grown in order that variety to secure. He must consider the market to which he shall cater. He must consider the record of that company from which he buys. He must consider their integrity and their record in the production of first grade material for he depends entirely upon them to supply him with high quality seed. On August 6 V. M. Watts will discuss in a sectional meeting of the 12th annual Farmers' Week to be held by the University of Arkansas College of Agriculture, August 5th, 6th, 7th and 8th, the matter of vegetable seed as applied to the grower in Arkansas. He will outline the factors which go to make good seed and will consider the means of securing it.

Specialists Hold Poultry Meetings

Many Flocks In Country Culled at Various Demonstrations

The poultry program started in Hempstead county last Monday night with the meeting of the Hempstead County Poultry association, at which time Sam Houghton, of the Purina Mills, made an excellent address. The program continued through Wednesday.

Culling demonstrations were held in six communities: Tokio, Ozan, Green Laster, Shover Springs, Washington and Blevins. There were 600 hens culled, and 30 per cent of this number were culled. 400 of these hens were dipped, with a solution of sodium fluoride, one ounce to one gallon of water, to rid them of lice. 100 young pullets were vaccinated as a preventative of chicken pox. Two post mortem examinations were given.

Almost one hundred people attended these demonstrations. Tokio had the largest meeting reported, with about forty in attendance.

R. E. Samuelson, Missouri Pacific Poultry Specialist; Sam Houghton and Mr. McClouth of the Purina Mills and G. W. Knox, extension specialist were in charge of the demonstrations. Business men who co-operated were Terrell Corns, Mr. Middlebrooks, Joe Kirby, George Dadds of Hope and Charles Locke of Ozan. Others were Lynn L. Smith, county agent, Grover C. Kinkaid, assistant county agent and Miss Martha Jane Bucher, county home demonstration agent.

250 Tire Covers Reach City Today

American Legion Teams To Sell Watermelon Festival Advertising Covers This Week—Supply Limited and Will Be Exhausted Early

Two hundred and fifty of the 1930 Watermelon Festival tire-covers arrived in Hope today from Chicago and are being distributed to local motorists this afternoon.

L. Carter Johnson, of the publicity committee of the Festival received the shipment, distribution of which will be handled by Dewey Hendrix and teams of American Legion members.

The tire-covers will be sold for the next two days by the Legion teams, and the surplus after that will be turned over to local garages and filling stations for sale at cost. In all the history of these advertising tire-covers, none has been left over, the demand for them always exceeding the supply.

This year's design pictures a little negro thumping one of Hempstead county's giant watermelons. The Hope Festival tire-covers, famous for their striking appearance and humor, will be done ample justice by this year's model, the publicity committee believe.

Not only are the covers purchased by local motorists, but many business houses place them on cars used by their salesmen, so that the annual Festival gets thousands of dollars worth of free advertising all over western Arkansas and eastern Okla.

Gurdon Killing To Come Up in Court

Fatal Shooting and Store Burglary Reviewed by Grand Jury

ARKADELPHIA, July 11.—Clark county circuit court convenes here Monday, July 28. On the docket are 187 cases, 100 of which are criminal and 87 civil. Of the 100 criminal cases 51 are connected with liquor traffic, 10 are for burglary and grand larceny while others include assault and battery, forgery and disturbing the peace. It is believed that an indictment will be found against Woody Berry and Jim Hudson for the attempted robbery of the Ritchie Grocer company store, wholesale, at Gurdon on the morning of April 10, which resulted in the fatal shooting of Harry Lee Brown, employee of the store.

The robbers had gained entrance to the building through a back window when Brown, who lived next door, heard them and went to the scene. A battle was waged in almost total darkness during which Hudson was shot by City Marshal John Sheppard, who used a shotgun loaded with buckshot, the shot tearing through the flesh of the calf of his leg. Brown was shot and fatally wounded. He died on the way to a hospital.

Harry Lee Brown, who was killed during a store burglary at Gurdon, on April 10th, was a son of Mr. Lee Brown of this city, an employee of the Ritchie Grocer Co.

No Indication Of Rain Over Drouth Stricken Section

Many Fatalities Are Reported in Northern States

CITIES HARDEST HIT

Rain Fall of Two Days Ago Not Much Help to Burned Crops

CHICAGO, July 11.—(AP)—No prospect of relief from the worst heat wave over several years is in store for the north and middle west today. Two score of people have died, and many more have suffered prostration in the area around Chicago. The temperature today has dropped to the seventies.

Missouri is the hardest hit. Three deaths being reported from there today. There has been fifteen deaths in the St. Louis area alone. Temperature was reported as being 103 degrees there yesterday.

LITTLE ROCK, July 11.—(AP)—Clear skies again are in evidence in the state today as the sun continues to pour down on the parched population, pastures and crops.

Weather reports of "generally fair" and "fair and warmer" are growing monotonous as they continue to be sent out day by day.

Today's weather report of "fair and warmer," was well fulfilled in Little Rock, where the temperature reached 101 degrees today. The highest noon temperature of the year.

One section of Arkansas, Helena, yesterday reported a temperature of 104 degrees. That section also reports an unbroken drouth of 55 days, the worst since 1881.

South and southwest Arkansas has had a drouth of over a month's duration. The rain fall of two days ago in that section lowered the temperature somewhat but the benefit to the burned crops was negligible.

Gasoline and Cigar Tax Money Report

Expected to Amount to Over $7,000,000 This Year

LITTLE ROCK, July 11.—(AP)—Collection of the gasoline, cigar and cigarette taxes has steadily increased since the laws were enacted several years ago, David A. Gates, collectors of state revenues said today.

Gasoline tax for the year ending June 30, was $5,778,694.44, compared to $5,110,958.10 for the year ending June 30, 1929. A gain of $667,736.34.

Cigar and cigarette tax amounted to $1,234,152.21 an increase of $181,341.95 over the previous years.

The annual report of Mr. Gates to Governor Parnell will be ready to be handed in today.

Gates said that the collections would be well above the seven million dollar mark this year if the collections were as heavy the last part of the year as the first part.

Two Miners Are Killed When Building Burns

LEAD, S. D., July 11.—(AP)—Two miners were killed in a fire which destroyed three buildings at the "Homestead Gold Mine," late Thursday night.

Scotly Eastman and Sidney Wellman were the two miners killed, after they had been trapped in the elevator shaft when the engine was forced to flee for his life from the burning buildings.

Officials said that the damage caused by the fire would be upward of a million dollars.

The mine is located in the northern black hills and is one of the largest gold mines in the world.

In Air Tragedy

After dangling for two hours below an airplane, Merry Fahney, above, novice parachutist, finally floated safely to earth—but not before Bruno Schustek, wartime flyer, was killed when he fell 600 feet while trying to lower himself by a rope from another plane and released her. The girl's chute was attached to the plane and her weight was not sufficient to unfurl it. The accident happened near Chicago.

Little Aid From Arkansas Rains

Baking Temperatures In State Again Seen Today

LITTLE ROCK, July 11.—(AP)—Heat-wilted and drought-ridden Arkansas again is plodding through baking temperatures that promise to make a record test of its long-suffering capacity. A short-lived relief in the form of rain in scattered sections of the state Wednesday was followed Thursday by a renewal of the scorching weather under which the state has groaned for weeks.

Man and beast and crops have been distressed to a painful degree. Crops particularly because of their dependence on the weather for growth and development have been dried up in many sections and are a total loss. One section of the state has not had rain for 53 days, and the drought still remains unbroken. Other sections had gone 30 and 40 days without rain for their crops until showers broke the dry spell Wednesday, affording temporary relief.

Corn and truck crops have suffered heavy damage over the state, according to Charles Bouton, federal agricultural statistician. Cotton, too, is beginning to feel the effect of the prolonged dry spell, particularly that planted in thin soil, Bouton said.

Educator Speaks At Fordyce Today

Says Arkansas Boys and Girls Should Go to Home Schools

FORDYCE, July 11.—(AP)—Conditions that permit students to leave the state and allow educators to be drafted into the state, must be limited Dr. Charles D. Johnson, President of Ouachita College said today in his speech before the South Arkansas Chamber of Commerce in session here.

"The exodus of students that go from Arkansas to other states to obtain their education is one of the severest criticisms against the state."

"Another almost as bad is the exodus of men and women educators that are being brought into the state."

Declaring that in his judgement Arkansas lost millions of dollars each year by allowing this practice to continue.

He urged the South Arkansas Chamber of Commerce to aid in bringing about a reversal of these conditions in the state.

The Price of Freedom

NOW that the shouting and the flag-waving brought on by the Fourth of July have died away, it might be a good idea to take a critical look at this freedom of ours, which the holiday celebrates, and see just what it amounts to.

We are very fond of talking about our "right" to freedom, as American citizens. Too often we forget that this right carries a duty with it. To be free we must deserve freedom.

Solomon Levitan, state treasurer of Wisconsin, expressed this truth very ably in a recent speech, part of which is worth reproducing here.

"Every man, woman and child wants to be independent," remarked Mr. Levitan, "but how many are willing to fulfill the requirements of freedom? Uncivilized tribes roaming the forests are not free; they are the slaves of natural forces and of their ignorance. Freedom is the fruit of education and social discipline, and integrity is its strength and sinew.

Without integrity the sudden gift of freedom is apt to develop into Russia and Spanish America are examples of this. When the Spanish-American countries adopted democratic constitutions, graft was everywhere. Lack of integrity has greatly delayed the political, industrial and social freedom in those countries. We will find that wherever integrity is the highest, democracy is the most stable.

"In our own country today, our continued progress industrially, socially and politically is dependent upon our integrity. It is the foundation of that self-government so vital to a democratic form of government."

That is worth thinking about a little.

Surely it would take an optimist to say that political conditions in America today are famous for their complete integrity. The Teapot Dome and Veterans' Bureau scandals are very far in the background. City governments are still, in large measure, in the hands of ward-healers and self-seeking political czars. Chicanery in public office is so common as to excite little comment.

Mr. Levitan has summarized up the situation aptly. To get the fruits of our democratic government, we must take an interest in the government and demand 100 per cent performances from our office holders. Otherwise our boasted independence will become a sham.

We're Misinformed, Too

AN article in the current issue of Good Housekeeping Magazine reports a very interesting fact. Travelers returning from Russia assert that the great mass of Russian people has been convinced that the United States and England are planning to make war on her and are only awaiting a favorite chance to strike.

The idea that a nation sometimes gets about another nation are sometimes funny, and nothing could be much wider of the mark than this one. What England's intentions may be we do not know; but if there is in this republic any third official or otherwise, for war on Soviet Russia we have not yet heard of it.

However, it won't do to laugh too heartily at Russian ignorance. A great many people in our country are firmly convinced that our social structure is being seriously undermined by Russian plotters. Indeed, our congress now is officially investigating the great "red peril." Our ignorance seems to match Russia's ignorance rather neatly.

A Test of Citizenship

LAST Friday we celebrated the 154th anniversary of the Declaration of Independence. There are no doubt quite a number of citizens who mused during the day with the thought that the old country is treating us rather roughly during these days of "Hoover prosperity."

Before you give the old country a real cussing for its dereliction, pause a minute, and reflect: as a citizen, do you not owe something to your country? Despite the inability to buy a new car or put on some "dog," this is positively the best country we know anything about. It would be improved if more of the citizenship realized their debt to the nation in the matter of respect of its laws and the observance of its traditions, whether it be swearing a falsehood as to the valuation of property at tax assessing time, failure to vote or refusal to do jury service, buy liquor, or condoning as "smart business" the activities of some public officials who has used his position in the government for private gain.

Remember the United States can reach no higher position than its sorriest citizen.—Morillon Democrat.

Dr. Frederick L. Hoffman, insurance statistician, says that in addition to the 17,000 suicides in the United States annually, an additional 45,000 seriously contemplate self-destruction. This last figure is very conservative. A single club golfer, as his game grows more dub, may contemplate self-destruction at least 45,000 times in a season.—Arkansas Gazette.

The Five O'Clock Quitter

3 Generations In This Picture

You'd never guess there were three generations in this picture, would you? Just to prove that appearances are deceiving, Mrs.
Freda Leslie posed with her little daughter—beg pardon, daughter-in-law, Mrs. Anne Leslie—and the latter's baby. Mrs. Anne Leslie, a former vaudeville performer, is only 42 inches tall. Her husband is normal size as is the showing woe was the greater and who was the lesser. "I prove these claims by these scriptures," he declared. He then read many scriptures to prove his position.

"Christ, on that notable passover night, took advantage of this old Jewish custom, to teach the apostles the great lesson of humility," declared Mr. Lewis. He then proceeded to show that foot washing was not a church ordinance, but that it was meant to teach us to be humble and always ready to serve our fellow men.
To feed the hungry, clothe the naked and give rest to the weary, etc.

Tonight he will tell how his own people, buried him in effigy. He will tell of the two attempts that were made on his life, because he was a Jew, was preaching "Jesus Christ, the Resurrected Saviour." He will tell how he became an outcast among his own people, and how he became a living orphan, although he has many sisters and brothers and other close relatives.

As an overflow audience is expected to hear Mr. Lewis tonight please come early, so that you may get a seat. Good congregational singing, begins promptly at 8 p. m. No collections are taken at these services. Hear this heart rendering lecture, while enjoying an hour rest, in a cool church house, where a warm welcome awaits all. These services are held in the Church of Christ meeting house, at 612 West Fifth street.

The meeting will close with the Sunday evening service. Mr. Lewis announces his subjects for this week,
Saturday evening, "The Difference Between Jew, Gentile and Christian." Sunday morning, "What Does it Take to Make a Strong Church?" Sunday evening, "Strangers or Pilgrims on This Earth." This will close Mr.
Lewis stay in Hope. A special service will give the "Story of His Conversion."

"HOW MUCH AM I OFFERED?"

Perhaps that's the way you do your shopping—and we think it a splendid way to measure the buying power of your dollar! "How Much Am I Offered" should be your Buying Slogan for every dollar you spend!

But remember this: Not every "Bargain" you see advertised is really a BARGAIN! Often the merchandise is of an inferior quality—a "second" or a "third"—that you do not know about until you get home with the goods!

The safest way is to shop at a store you KNOW! A store that you can depend upon—a store that gives you the best in value for every dime you spend.

We pride ourselves on being a DEPEND-ABLE store—and our many hundreds of customers prove that dependability!

LITTLE ROCK, Ark., July 8.—(UP)—J. W. Clack, candidate for the state legislature, may not be elected a representative but he has some sturdy planks in his platform.

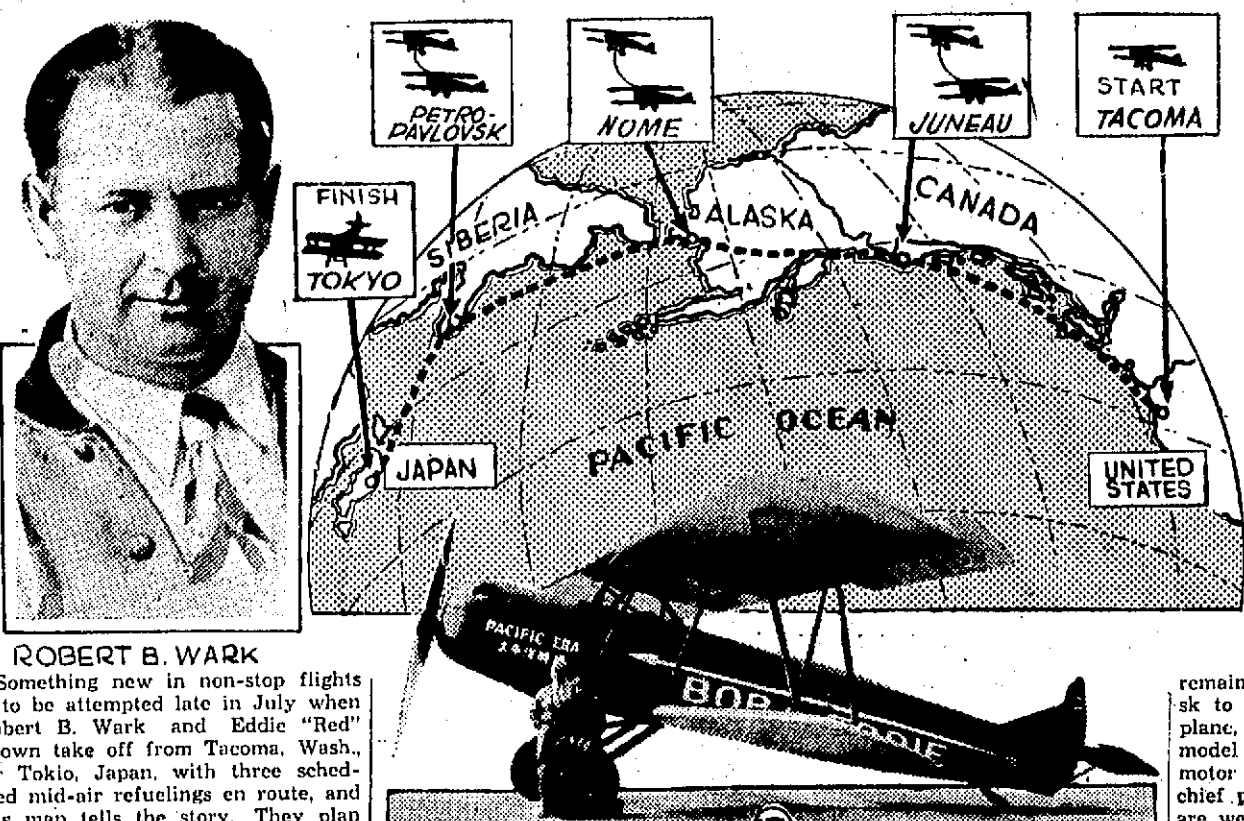

If elected, the first thing Clack is going to do is to introduce a bill calling for a 99 year penitentiary sentence if any official allows an overdraft in his department.

Secondly, Clack is going to ask that the legislature meet only every 12 years. He also would have the office of state treasurer removed.

HOOKS AND SLIDES

by William Braucher

The Baseball Tide
When Shakespeare wrote that line about there being "a tide in the affairs of men which taken at its flood leads on to fortune," he expounded a great lead for a baseball yarn. There is a moment in a baseball game when victory hangs upon a single act, and the result may be a winning or losing break of many games.

The Cleveland Indians furnish a grand example. They fought their way to the top of the league, beating the Simmonsless Athletics three straight. Then the New York Yankees came to town. The Yankees' reputation for power evidently had made a deep impression upon the young Indian pitchers, for in every tight spot, with the big runs feeling them, they issued walks to the batsmen. You cannot go on testing bases on balls, you know, and win ball games. The result was disaster.

Batters Get Wise
The Yankees sensed the concession that was being made to their power. It gave them a psychological edge on the enemy. And in three days they rolled up something like 40 runs against the team that had just beaten the Athletics straight.

The effect of the Yankee rout did not end there. The Indians, after dropping their series to the Yankees, went to Washington and dropped another series. They slid from the top right down the ladder, past Washington and the Yankees.

Billy Evans, the former umpire, who is now general-managing the Indians, was out on the coast looking at ivory specimens when the rout took place. Upon his return I ran across him, and asked him a team that looked so good one day could be so subject the next.

"They're young fellows," said Billy, "and the steady influence of our injured veterans like Fonce and Luke Sewall was missing. That Yankee attack just shot their morale all to pieces."

"Some little thing may happen in one of the games, and it may turn the tide and they may win a whole lot of ball games in a row."

DID YOU KNOW THAT—
Glenna Collett is superstitious . . . she carries a dime that John D. Rockefeller gave her, a package of dried four-leaf clovers and once she had her caddy tote around a horseshoe . . . she can play the piano and ukulele . . . her mother travels with her a great deal . . . she has "sque in for" real estate, interior decorating, assistant to a golf course architect and clubhouse designer . . . she has square and strong hands . . . she wears one ring and little other jewelry . . . she seldom uses rouge . . . and very little powder . . . she likes to ride, play tennis and shoot arrows . . . people who rave and gush she abhors . . . missed shots bring color to her cheeks . . . she was national champion when 19 years old . . . when she was a little girl she did not care for dolls, but was a swell marble shooter and could spin a top very nicely.

I've seen it happen time and again.

The Simmons Touch

"It happened just this year. Remember the recent series between Washington and the Macks? In the very first game Washington had the A's beat right up until the last inning. Two out and Al Simmons steps up, and clouts a home run. The Macks take the whole series—after being a doormat for the Senators in previous games."

"Something of the same kind happened in that well known 10-run inning in the last world series, and, oddly enough, it was Simmons who stepped up there and spilled the onions. That wallop over the left field stands in Philly lifted the Macks right out of it."

"It's hard sometimes to get a team started winning, and once they get going, it's hard to stop 'em."

That's what Shakespeare might have written if he ever had scored a ball game.

crew of four men on a three-year cruise of the seven seas. Her husband is one of the crew.

Their schooner, a 40-foot two master the "Swordfish," will not return to this country until 1933, when Chicago's centennial exposition will be under way.

The proposed itinerary includes Bermuda, the Panama Canal, New Zealand, Australia, the Malay archipelago, Suez canal, Greece, Italy, Gibraltar, Spain, France, Brazil, the east coast of the United States, and down the St. Lawrence and through the Great Lakes to Chicago.

Cook and his wife organized the trip to obtain material for books.

Mrs. Cook is a painter and her husband, a graduate of Northwestern University's school of journalism, is an amateur photographer.

Besides the Cooks, the "Swordfish" crew includes Earl Evans, who played football at Harvard; Paul, his brother, who played at Drake University; and Donald Dickinson, just 21, the radio operator, only a short time out of St. John's Military academy.

Paul Evans will act as the ship's engineer, while Earl will be captain. Mrs. Cook, as ship doctor, will double in brass as ship cook.

DANCING JUDITH

BY CORALIE STANTON and HEATH HOSKEN
COPYRIGHT 1930 BY CHELSEA HOUSE

BEGIN HERE TODAY

JUDITH GRANT, artist's model, loves ALAN STEYNE, painter, who is also loved by CHUMMY MORLEY, Judith's roommate and best friend. Chummy had loved Steyne years ago, and had suffered a loss of memory when he went away; so, although Steyne loved Judith, Judith insists that it is duty to marry Chummy, whose memory is restored when she sees him again. Steyne and Chummy, therefore, are engaged. Judith is studying dancing, and rich BRUCE GIBSON, financier, plans to star her in a musical show, although Steyne warns her that Gibson's intentions are not honorable. Judith's dancing teacher, GUARVENTUS, is killed in a motor accident. Steyne comes to the girl's apartment, finds Judith alone, and holds her in his arms and kisses her. Chummy sees them, but does not let them know she has seen.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY CHAPTER XXVII

TWO mornings later Steyne received a little note from Clarissa, asking him to come to see her at her home. She did not name any time, and Steyne waited until noon, thinking she might want him to take her out to lunch.

He found her dressed for the street, her fair hair escaping picturesquely from under a soft black hat. Her high-bred, sensitive face was very pale, but her eyes lit up her features with the amazing vitality that she had acquired since her recovery.

"Alan," she began at once, "I asked you here because I want to talk to you alone. I'm afraid I shall sound very silly and as if I didn't know my own mind, but I've—well, I've come to the conclusion that I don't want to be married."

The young man caught at the suggestion as a drowning man catches at a straw.

"You mean you want to postpone it again, Clarissa? I suppose it's on account of Judy. You're not quite happy about her, are you?"

"No, Alan," she answered slowly, "I don't mean that. I mean that I don't want to be married at all."

"You don't want—?" He broke off in sheer amazement.

"Yes, I know it sounds perfectly ridiculous. I quite expect you to think I'm mad."

"But, Clarissa, is there any reason?" he asked.

"Not any reason that sounds good enough," the girl said, forcing herself to smile. "The fact is, Alan, I'm awfully afraid I'm still a little queer at times. It's been unreal to me for a long time, the thought that I was going to be your wife."

That was true enough. It had seemed too good, too wonderful, too blessed, even to imagine. "I ought to have told you this before," she added.

"Clarissa, I don't understand. Is it anything lacking in me? Have I done anything to hurt you?"

"No, Alan, no. I am as fond of you as ever—in a way. You have been everything that is dear and good—simply everything; and I should hate to think that I was hurting you."

"But, of course, you are hurting me!" he interrupted.

The words were purely mechanical. He was playing a part, just as she was; only he did not know that she knew the truth.

"Please, Alan, don't be angry with me," she went on gently. "I'm awfully sick with myself, but I really want to settle down to work more than I want everything else in the world."

"You care for your career more than you do for me?"

Her lips trembled a little. He believed that she had changed her mind. He was glad, oh, but she knew how glad he was! He loved Judy. He must have learned to love Judy while she was out of her senses; and when she recovered, he felt himself in honor bound to her.

It was such a simple story. They were both loyal to her—he and Judy. They would have remained loyal to the end.

She read Steyne aright. He thought she was speaking the simple truth. He was too much overjoyed to question what she said.

He was free—that was his paramount thought. He was not to be asked to enter into an unnatural union that would have destroyed his soul. He would not have to persecute himself every day to a woman who loved him.

"I'm sorry, Alan; but I hope we shall still stay friends."

Something in her voice and glance seemed to pierce his defenses.

"Are you perfectly sure?" he asked with a feverish earnestness. "I can't help thinking that I've done something."

"You've done nothing, Alan, nothing—believe me."

He looked into her clear eyes, which were smiling in order to hide her broken heart; and he believed her because he wanted to believe.

TWO days later was to have been Chummy's wedding day.

On the afternoon of the day before, she met Judy as she was going out of her door, on her way to seek another lodging. The time had come when she must get some kind of a studio, where she could work.

When she had found it, she was going to move her few belongings into it and then go away for two or three weeks. She had written to a tiny fishing hamlet on the seacoast. She wanted to be near the ocean. Then she was coming back to work—to work harder than any woman had ever worked before.

Her work must justify what she had said to Alan. Her work was her sheet anchor now. It was all she had.

Judy held out a great bunch of flowers wrapped in tissue paper.

"I was just bringing these to you," she said. "I want to kiss you and say goodbye! Tomorrow's the great day—and you're off into the big world! And little Judy will be all alone."

"No, Judy—it's all off," said Chummy cheerfully.

She felt uneasy. This was not like talking to a man.

"Oh!" gasped Judy. "You mean you've been so silly—you've put it off again because of me? Chummy, you make me angry. Didn't I tell you I was perfectly well able to look after myself?"

"No—off for good, Judy dear. I found that I didn't want to marry Alan after all."

"Rubbish!" cried Judy tempestuously. "Where is he?"

"Alan has gone away. You see, I left it so late. He said he couldn't help feeling a little foolish. Men are like that, I think. I expect he thought he'd get laughed at."

Judy suddenly laughed uproariously.

"Oh, Chummy, how ridiculous you are! I suppose it means that you and Alan have had a tiff?"

"No, Judy—no." Chummy was desperate. "I don't care for Alan enough to marry him. I find I care more for my work. We're going to be great friends, of course, all the same. He quite understands. He doesn't want a wife who puts her painting first. He's gone to Paris, and I'm going to the sea, and when we come back we'll all be jolly again together, just as we used to be."

Judy stared at Clarissa very hard.

"Well, I'm blown!" she said. Chummy must have been a wonderful actress. For the moment she quite deceived her friend. Judy was thunderstruck. She lost the power of speech. She left her flowers in Chummy's hands and went away.

But Judy was not really convinced.

"There's something in this!" she said to herself an hour or so later. "What can it be? If Chummy didn't worship the ground he trod on, then I ought to be in bedlam!"

insure a continuous supply during the summer. Sweet corn should be planted as soon as danger of frost is over in the spring, and successive plantings may be made every two weeks until the middle of July or the first of August.

Cucumbers usually do well in summer if they are irrigated. They should be picked every two or three days. If allowed to mature the plants cease to bear. Endive should be planted in mid-summer and is used as a salad or as greens. The heart may be blanched by raising the leaves and tying at the top. New Zealand spinach is a variety that grows during the summer. The plant is branching and the leaves are covered with short silvery hairs, giving it a gray-green color. The leaves should be gathered and the plant left to grow. Being a tropical variety it grows when no other variety of spinach is available. Summer crookneck squash is a succulent vegetable which is adapted to a summer garden. In the southern part of the state okra may be planted as late as July. Successive plantings should be made and if no pods are allowed to ripen the plants will bear till frost.

The diet during the hot summer months should consist very largely of fresh vegetables and fruits, and the home garden can easily be made to supply the needed vegetables during the season if a garden plan is used.

A garden plan with a system of rotation of vegetables is a good thing. When one vegetable has matured or has been exhausted, the space may be used for another crop, or successive plantings of the same vegetable may be made. Beans may be planted every two weeks until extremely hot weather, and within eight weeks of the first frost in the fall. Beets should be planted two or three successive times

Possible To Have Summer Gardens

Every One Has Spring Gardens But Few Do In Summer

The home vegetable garden is one of the most important means of reducing the cost of living, and to be most effective it must be a year-round garden, states Miss Gertrude Conant, University of Arkansas College of Agriculture, Extension Service.

Nearly every one who raises a garden has the early spring vegetables, but often in the dry months of July and August the garden is allowed to grow up in weeds instead of furnishing the supply of fresh vegetables that are a health requirement of the family. If there is plenty of humus in the soil and it is well cultivated to conserve moisture, there are many garden vegetables that can be raised during the summer.

Coxey's Kin in Beauty Race

Katherine Coxey, above, granddaughter of General Jacob Coxey of "Coxey's Army" fame, has no plans for leading another march of unemployed on Washington, but she does hope to be chosen as the world's most beautiful girl at the Galveston, Tex., beauty pageant in August. Miss Coxey, whose home is in Massillon, has entered the Ohio contest for selection of "Miss Ohio" and hopes to compete at Galveston for the title of "Miss Universe."

Now Machinery to Be Demonstrated

Farmers Are Turning To New and Improved Machinery

Research investigations show that cotton growers are turning to new machines and equipment to reduce the production costs. In some cases an almost complete series of machines is being used. At the Cotton Branch Experiment Station this year experiments are under way to study 4-row planting and cultivation; tractor operations, rotary hoe cultivation, mechanical cotton chopping, check row planting, and mechanical picking.

A number of the newer farm machines have been assembled and will be demonstrated by the Agricultural engineering section, Farmers' Week, August 5, 6, 7, 8, University of Arkansas College of Agriculture at Fayetteville.

Among the interesting new machines on display will be a "pot comb" which, plows, levels, and pulverizes the soil in one operation, making the ground ready for immediate planting.

"The Social Lion" at the Saenger For Two Days

Gary Cooper's sweetheart of "The Virginian" and "Only the Brave" has a new "boy friend." His name is Jack Oakie, and he may not be tall and gallant-looking but he is the screens greatest Wizard of Wise-crackers.

And that seems to count for something for Mary Brian in "The Social Lion," showing at the Saenger today and Saturday, because in the finale of the picture Mary and Jack co-operate in a great big kiss.

It's all about a young garage mechanic, a former enlisted man in the cavalry, who plays polo so well that he gains the stellar position on the society country club polo team of his town. But his success with the mallet makes him hanker for success with a snippy young society deb, and that's where he falls off his horse. In the end he has to admit that the plain little girl in moderate circumstances is the best little girl for him.

Jack Oakie of course is Marco Polo (himself) Perkins. Mary Brian is the plain little girl. And there is Skeets Gallagher to help fill in with uproarious wise-cracks whenever Jack is catching his breath after a particularly side-bustin' nifty.

Carol Gives French Town Biggest Stir in 700 Years

The historic chateau purchased by Carol of Rumania when he was exiled in France with Mme. Lupescu, looks across a fertile valley to the tree embowered village of Belleme (above).

BELLEME, France, July 11.—(AP)—This little provincial French town in the heart of Normandy has been more excited this summer than since 1929. Seven hundred years ago Louis IX of France was besieged in Chateau de Couesmes, two miles from here. From that same chateau Prince Carol of Rumania returned this spring to the throne of his country.

Masked behind a heavy growth of evergreen trees, a long winding lane leading to its doors, the chateau was a perfect setting for the prince, who went from exile to power in an airplane.

The chateau was bought by the prince three years ago when as a political exile, known as "Carol Caraiman," he sought a place of refuge. The prince gave the place to his companion, Madame Lupescu and in restoring it their personalities found free expression.

Both the prince and his companion were regarded here as regal figures and the peasants still talk of the prodigious hand with which the gloomy old pile was refitted. The prince has a warm place in the hearts of the country people and the inhabitants of the town of Belleme, a place of winding streets and eleventh century houses. Th three-lined drive leading to the ancient chateau ends in a grassy court.

Facing this court is the main entrance and at the right hand corner is a tower that, according to the village tradition, was a military post for Louis IX.

In restoring the chateau Carol was careful to leave this tower untouched. It stands today just as it was when gaily caparisoned chargers rather than horse power limousines stood before it.

The people of Belleme relate that when the exiled couple first came to the town, Mme. Lupescu was thought to be a German school-mistress and how Nico, who played such an important part in the flight to Bucharest, was taken for Carol, "because he is so much more distinguished looking."

They hope that the gay young man who, by his smile, democratic ways and liberal spending found his way into their hearts, will again come to the old grey stone building that looks across a fertile valley to the town it was built to defend.

Plan New Golf Course For Players in Italy

SAN REMO, Italy, July 11.—(UP)—Golf is making its headway in Italy and another new golf course is under construction in the "Gogna Valley" about two and a half miles from San Remo and about 600 feet above sea level, it was announced here.

The site is one of the most picturesque in Italy and the views from the clubhouse and those of the tees and greens are magnificent.

The course will be 18 holes and will stretch 5,400 yards.

There will be six short holes all different in character and full of interest.

The promoters have announced that all classes of players have been taken into consideration in the construction of the course, and the expert as well as the long handicap man will be provided with many interesting and varied problems in the course of the round.

The course will be opened for play early in 1931.

Nature Thought of Everything

Nature thought of everything when the human body was made. When the body is about to become ill, nature planned danger signals to warn us. Thus, if our children grind their teeth when they sleep, or lack appetite, or suffer from abdominal pains, or itch about the nose and fingers, we should know that they may have contracted worms. Then, if we are wise, we buy a bottle of White's Cream Vermifuge and safely and surely expel the worms. Thus we avoid the danger of very serious trouble. White's Cream Vermifuge costs only 33c a bottle and can be had at any drug store.

Officers Arrest Man and Confiscate Liquor and Mash

Hempstead county officers Riley Lewallen, Alex Purdie in company with Federal prohibition officers Quillen of Texarkana, Sheriff Duty and Deputy Sheriff Heirson of Lafayette county today about 2 o'clock raided a whiskey still on the Tom Hollis farm, 5 miles north east of Patmos, and 12 miles south of Hope. They captured a new copper still of approximately 100 gallon capacity, 1200 gallons of mash and three ten gallon kegs of whiskey. The whiskey was found buried in a corn field.

Tom Hollis, well known farmer was arrested and was charged with possessing the still, mash and whiskey. Hollis was brought to this city by the officers and was then taken to Texarkana to answer charges in Federal court.

The mash and whiskey was destroyed by the officers, while the still was brought to this city.

Finger Prints In Use About 3,000 Years Ago

CHICAGO, July 11.—(AP)—Identification by means of finger prints was used several hundred years before Christ by certain peoples of the Orient according to Dr. Berthold Laufer, curator of anthropology at the Field museum.

A number of clay seals from China marked with thumb prints of people who lived about 3,000 years ago are on exhibit at the museum to prove the antiquity of the apt.

The prints were made on the seals to authenticate the documents on which they were placed, Dr. Laufer believes.

Ichabod—Are you going to send your son abroad to develop his voice? Cranium—No. I figure we've got just as good bathtubs right here in the United States.
